

A Complete Vacation Guide to

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK

BREATHTAKING BEAUTY AND FRESH MOUNTAIN AIR

www.amtrakvacations.com

Deep valleys, ancient forests, and alpine scenery are only part of what makes Montana's Glacier National Park so utterly incredible. Home to over 130 pristine named lakes, five National Historic Landmarks, and over 1 million acres that boast parts of two mountain ranges, over 1,000 species of plants, and hundreds of species of animals, Glacier National Park is a true explorer's paradise. After arriving to the park by rail, begin your explorations with a boat cruise of Two Medicine Valley. You'll leave feeling rejuvenated and inspired after discovering this natural gem.

TRAIN:

Amtrak's Empire Builder

WHAT YOU'LL SEE:

Onboard Amtrak's Empire Builder, you'll see some of the best of America's rugged wilderness as you travel along major portions of the Lewis and Clark trail, much of which is still only accessible by train. If you start the journey in Chicago, route highlights include passing through the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, the simple beauty of the plains of North Dakota, the vast expanse of the high desert and Big Sky country, the stunning Cascade Mountains and the spectacular Columbia River Gorge. West Glacier Station is just steps away from the park's entrance, and all the stunning glaciers, waterfalls and mountains the area is known for. The impressive, timbered Glacier Park Lodge sits to the left of the station and is a wonderful option for overnight stays at the park. Constructed from trees estimated to be over 600 years old, the lodge was built by the Great Northern Railway to promote rail travel and to attract tourists to this beautiful area. Nowadays, the park is one of the most popular stops in the entire Amtrak system.

favorite things about*

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK

THE TRAIN TAKES YOU TO THE PARK'S DOORSTEP

Amtrak's Empire Builder route stops at East Glacier Park station in East Glacier Park Village, just steps from the park entrance. For decades, it's been a popular seasonal stop for the Empire Builder line, open from April to October and serving mostly visitors to Glacier National Park.

MOUNTAIN GOATS ARE A SYMBOL OF THE PARK

If you're visiting Glacier National Park, it won't be long before you spot the agile mountain goat, perhaps hanging out on the edge of a steep mountain cliff. The official symbol of the park due to its prevalence and perseverance in the area, the hardy animal has made a name for itself, carefully watching visitors from a safe distance or foraging for food. Their special hooves allow them to easily climb a variety of terrain, from rock to ice, with ease.

'JAMMERS' ARE THE TRANSPORTATION OF CHOICE

Visitors to Glacier National Park can enjoy tours of the park in style in historic red buses called 'Jammers.' Originally introduced to U.S. National Parks in the 1930s in an effort to reduce car traffic, this distinctive fleet of coach cars was restored and modified in 2002, with a number converted to run on alternative fuel. Many repeat visitors to the park say their drive along Going-to-the-Sun Road in the vintage Jammer bus with the wind in their hair was the best part!

GOING-TO-THE-SUN ROAD IS AN AWARD WINNER

One of the most iconic stretches of land of Glacier National Park is arguably Going-to-the-Sun Road, the 53 mile-long scenic drive that opened way back in 1933 and boasts some of the most breathtaking natural views in North America. The road is famous, too, having appeared in the opening credits of the classic horror film The Shining, and having received several distinctive honors, including being registered as a National Historic Landmark, a National Historic Place, and a Historic Civil Engineering Landmark. The road crosses the Continental Divide via Logan's Pass, which can accumulate up to 80 feet of snow in the winter.

THE PARK IS WATER LOVER'S DELIGHT

There are a whopping 762 lakes in Glacier National Park, 131 of which are named. The largest lake in the park is Lake McDonald, at 9.4 miles long, 1.5 miles wide, and 464 feet deep. While Lake McDonald isn't considered a prime fishing lake, visitors flock to catch a sight of the many wild animals that live along its shore, including moose, black bears, and mule deer. The park is also home to 2,865 miles of streams, the longest of which is Upper McDonald Creek at 25.8 miles.

HISTORIC STRUCTURES ABOUND

There are more than 350 structures within the boundaries of the park, including chalets, hotels, visitor centers, barracks, and more, all of which appear on the National Register of Historic Places.

PLANTS AND ANIMALS ARE PLENTIFUL

Plant and animal species thrive in Glacier National Park, with 71 species of mammals, 276 species of birds, and 1,990 total species of plants documented. Wildlife tours are popular among visitors, and sightings are frequent in the warmer spring and summer months.

MOUNTAINS AND MORE MOUNTAINS

There are a total of 175 mountains in Glacier National Park, the tallest of which is Mt. Cleveland at 10,448 feet. Logan Pass, the highest point on the Going-to-the-Sun Road, located along the Continental Divide, comes in at 6,646 feet.

THE PARK IS HOME TO 26 GLACIERS, BUT THAT NUMBER IS SHRINKING

Glacier National Park is home to 26 glaciers, down from approximately 150 in 1850. That number is expected to continue its rapid decline as climate changes shrink their size, according to the US Geological Survey (USGS). Of the existing glaciers, the largest is Harrison Glacier, at 1.6 million square meters.

5 Reasons Why you should travel to Glacier National Park with AMTRAK VACATIONS

1. Amtrak Trains Put You Right in the Heart Glacier National Park

The biggest advantage of train travel? Your train will take you directly to centrally located train stations from city center to city center. That means when you arrive at Glacier National Park, you'll be just steps from The Glacier Park Lodge. If that's not convenience, we don't know what is.

2. The Journey is Part of the Experience

When you travel on an Amtrak train, it's so much more than just getting to your destination as quickly as possible. From the moment you step onboard the train and make your way to your seat or room accommodations, you'll feel the difference. There's actually time to relax, have a meal, and reconnect with family, friends, and fellow passengers. And there's a unique opportunity to learn more about and connect with the land you're traveling through. As you pass great rivers, mountains, and vast desert landscapes, it's hard not to develop a new appreciation for our protected lands.

3. No Lines, No-Hassle, No Stress

Simply board the train at one of the 500+ Amtrak stations across the country and you're on your way to Glacier National Park! No airport lines, no security checks, no frazzled, stressed-out passengers. Amtrak's generous luggage guidelines let you bring two carry-on bags and two personal items on board, and there's always the option to check two bags for free if need be. Imagine getting right to the heart of your destination relaxed, refreshed and ready to explore!

4. See Multiple Parks in one Trip

With Amtrak Vacations, it's easy to take the national park train vacation of your dreams - whether it's spending more time at just Glacier National Park, or visiting up to 12 national parks in a single vacation! Check out the popular itineraries on the next few pages for examples of exciting multi-park train vacations.

5. Rail Expert Knowledge

No rail trip is too complicated for us. In today's travel world, one size no longer fits all, especially when it comes to train vacations. We know rail; from the best routes to the best times ensuring you have the best vacation. We can take your wish list and turn it into an exciting, memorable trip. HISTORY OF GLACIER PARK LODGE

Glacier Park Lodge was built over a century ago by the Great Northern Railway. The immense timbers that support the Lodge were around 500 to 800 years old when they were cut. There are a total of 60 timbers. They are 36 to 42 inches in diameter, 40 feet long, and all retain their bark. The timbers in the lobby are Douglas fir and the verandahs are supported by Cedars from Washington.

Situated on the Blackfeet Reservation, the hotel site was purchased from the Piegan, a tribe of the Blackfeet Nation. This site was in a settlement then known as Midvale. When the present railway depot was built in 1912, the area was renamed Glacier Park Station and then became known as East Glacier Park in 1950.

The section of the Lodge containing the lobby and dining room was built in 1912-1913 and opened to guests on June 15, 1913. The opening was a very joyful event. Hundreds of Blackfeet Indians erected their teepees on the grounds and some 600 invited guests attended the celebration.

Some tribal members had never been beyond the boundaries of the government reservation and they never ceased to wonder at the seemingly unlimited powers the "Great Spirit" had bestowed on the white man as the massive lodge took shape. The Blackfeet promptly named the new lodge "Omahkoyis" or "Big Tree Lodge".

Today, 161 guest rooms can accommodate over 500 people. Visitors can enjoy the Great Northern Dining Room, Empire Bar, Empire Cafe Espresso Stand, gift shop featuring local Blackfeet crafts, Red Bus Tours, an outdoor swimming pool, a nine-hole golf course, a nine-hole pitch 'n putt course, and Remedies Day Spa featuring massages and other relaxing treatments. All rooms are rustic yet comfortable accommodations with queen, double and/or twin beds, private bathrooms, direct-dial telephones. Family rooms have multiple beds. Bell service is available. Access to all rooms is via stairway only.

A limited number of ADA-accessible rooms are available and are booked based on space available. Only designated guide, service, and/or hearing companion animals are allowed in the Lodge.
